

Welcome!

We are a meeting place for people who care about animals.

- As a volunteer civil defense organization, our primary societal task is assisting the Swedish Board of Agriculture during outbreaks of disease or other crises that affect animals. This relates mainly to farm animals, and we do it with members who have received relevant training.
- Another of our tasks is ensuring preparedness among households, in terms of both the people and also their animals.
- In addition, we arrange a variety of activities, such as courses, lectures, camps, and study visits.

A volunteer civil defense organization

Svenska Blå Stjärnan (Swedish Blue Star) is one of eighteen volunteer civil defense organizations, with these including the Red Cross and the Swedish Working Dog Club.

Our main task is assisting the Swedish Board of Agriculture regarding outbreaks of animal diseases or other crises within the animal sector, in particular those involving farm animals. Another of our tasks is ensuring domestic preparedness among households. We do this by being present at trade fairs, markets, and spring cow release (kosläpp) events, and also by providing our own material at schools.

Crisis preparedness checklists for both people and animals are available on our website.

What you get as a member

As a member, you can participate in various activities that help you learn more about animals. With us, the entire family can pursue their interest in animals through thematic evenings, lectures, courses, animal camps, dog walks, and much more.

If you would like to be a resource during outbreaks of disease and other crises that affect animals, you are welcome to take our civil defense training courses. These ensure you can really contribute and make a difference when help is needed. The more of us there are, the more we can contribute in this way.

Our local branches

Our branches and youth associations hold local activities all over the country. The youth associations are for people up to the age of 26. In addition to our fun and interesting camps and courses, from the age of 16 you can take our civil defense training courses, which give you the opportunity to help during crises. You can also be an official, get involved as a member of the board, or train as a youth leader. Together, we create meaningful leisure time by forming a friendly community and arranging enjoyable activities.

Civil defense training courses

Our civil defense training courses are free of charge for members who want to become a resource for crisis preparedness in society. They are carried out in cooperation with the Swedish Board of Agriculture and the Swedish Civil Defence and Resilience Agency (MCF, formerly MSB). We offer courses about various types of agricultural animals, and people aged 16 to 60 are eligible to enroll on them. For example, it is possible to assist veterinarians during outbreaks of animal diseases, and contribute in various crises when help is needed.

Training in crisis preparedness for animal owners

We train members who want to become instructors and hold lectures on crisis preparedness and basic animal healthcare for owners of horses, dogs, and cats.

As a trained Blå Stjärna (Blue Star), you are an important part of crisis preparedness in society and also a part of our wider community. We and the animals need you.
